PERSONAL PREPAREDNESS: HAZARD REDUCTION

From Personal Emergency Preparedness

Nonstructural Hazard Mitigation – also called hazard reduction – refers to all of the ways most people can make a home, office or work space physically safer – without hiring a professional.

There are many benefits to Hazard Mitigation. Reducing hazards:

☐ increases your own physical safety ☐ increases physical safety for employees ☐ creates safer environments for clients ☐ provides protection for data and information ☐ makes safety visible and tangible	☐ provides protection for equipment and material ☐ encourages continuity of your business or service ☐ encourages order, reduces clutter ☐ addresses "reasonable care" liability issues

Cabinet Latches
protect fingers & toes from broken glass

Straps
brace heavy furniture and large items in place

Safety Hooks
stop pictures, clocks, mirrors from falling

Earthquake Putty
holds delicate items in place

Learn for opportunities to make a room safer:

- ☐ Bolt heavy cabinets, bookshelves, furniture to studs
- ☐ Strap computers, fax, equipment to desks or tables
- ☐ Clear exits, pathways and earthquake-safe spaces
- ☐ Fasten breakables to walls/shelves with museum wax
- ☐ Lower heavy items to bottom shelves
- ☐ Remove fire and chemical hazards
- ☐ Install smoke alarms, fire extinguishers, cabinet latches
- ☐ Label fire exits, safety supplies
